ECOMAN Competition

The ECOMAN Competition sees student school groups take on the role as co-directors of an operating company which has been in business for 10 years.

Students will make decisions about demand for their company's product, productive outputs, sales and marketing, environmental impact, training and numbers of personnel, management of budgets, income and expenditure statements, dividends paid, borrowings and much more.

All this will take place in competition against other student groups based on an economic scenario for each year of the company's operations.

At the end of 4 years of competitive trading, all directors will report to the shareholders on their company's success.
